JUDGE SAUFLEY DIES SUDDENLY AT HOME

DISTINGUISHED JURIST STRICK. EN WITHOUT WARNING-HIS BRILLIANT CAREER

Micah Chrisman Sauttey, judge of this, the 18th judicial district of Kentucky, died suddenly at his home here about half past eight o'clock this. J'riday morning.

Death came quickly and without warning, and from the quiet digulty of expression of his face in last repose, must have been paintess and percetul the nort of death that

No warning flutter was heard of the wings as the dark Angel of Denth hovered over the home on Danville avenue this morning. Judge Sautley had eaten a good breakfast. He had been leeling about in his usual health lictely, and had gotton nicely through the special term of the Lincoln cir-cuit court which was oncluded last week, without especial fatigue. True, he had remarked after preakfast that he telt sema discomfort in his stom ach, but illife was thought of it at the time, and he went out to feed chickens carrying a tin can teed in his hard, ite passed ifenry Evans, his colored gardener and remarked that like stomach fell unesay, but went on to the chicken yard and was seen no more alive. Soon afterward, the colored man, baving occasion to go that way, found the body of Judge Saulley prone upon the ground by the gate, it was life-less, but stid warm. The half filled can of fe d by under his head wherit had struck when he lell over. The temple on the right side was slightly contused where the skin had been cut by the sharp edges of the cun. That was all.

News of the death of Judge Sauf ley spread quickly over the com numand caused widespresd and level ones quickly repaired to the home to administer what comfort they could to the beloved widow and children, in this their darkest Few women have been called upon to bear in so short a time suct grievious affliction as has this noble wire. Only last March she lost her son, George It. Saufley, and grief over this is believed to have been more or less indirectly the cause of has tening the demine of his father, tor few sons were loved as was his son and his father and mother were wrapped up in him and his tuture and his death was a mortal idow.

Judge Saufley was just entering up on his third term as judge of the little district, after a long life full of honors and testimonials of the respect and esteem of his fellow men. was in his 68th year, having been boin in Monticello, Wayno county, in 1842, the son or Henry Rinehart and Emily Chrisman Saufley. His futher was the youngest son of Adam Saufley, who cause to Kentucky with four staiwart sons from Wythe county, Virginia, early in the history of the state. Judge Saufley was one of a large family of children, but the only mirvivor now is his sister, Mrs. C. A. Coz, of Jonesboro, Tenn. In 1861 when the Civil War broke not more faithful, acceptant and devoted. Yet this was a very human man in spite of all these things, a man of spiendid vigor and health with all a man's impulses, hopes, dreams and aspirations. And ha loved her.

He, too, sat upon the white sands of the gemlike island and looked out into the far blue of the Pacific washing the distant shores and lands peopled with stranga creatures of history and romance and ha, too, wondered. He had had no axperience with men and the world and he longed to get away and to take her away.

She had long since discovered that he was a gentleman, an innate gentleman; that he had been well born, and unknown and mysterious temptations the free course of thoughts that bubbled and seethed within his brain, and the relationship between them remained that of mistrees said man, teacher and taught, friend and friend. It was he who so maintained it, though of this she was unaware.

And he, too, longed for some hour to come when he might with right and earth seemed to have shaken for decency and dignity speak the words He was not versed in the ways of Ite violence was terrific Just before He had no store of knowiedge, no lesson of experience to fall with one tremendous shock as suddenback upon. He knew hut one woman. He could not predicate from any petty maxim, or from any ancient aphorism. sand pieces of artitlery, the gray haor from any worn out phitosophy, what she would or would not do under certain conditions. Indeed, he only thought that he loved her and he must tell her or die in the concealment.

And so matters ran on and on. It needed hut a spark to ignite the powder, it would have seemed, and yet a vast cataclysm of nature only brought about the explosion. He had never touched her except to take her hand. Her person had been as inviolate to him as if she had been a star above his head. And she had heen careful under no circumstances to allow more than that. Their handa had clasped often. Indeed, with every "Good night" and "Good morning" the circuit of louch was made and broken. but that was all. They usually parted at night on the sands where she had first been thrown ashore. He would stand and watch her as she glided away from him in the darkness toward the cave that was her home. Sha had impressed upon him how she trusted him, the absolute assurance, the antire confidence that she had that he would respect the agreement between them and he would have died rather than have transgressed the law, stepped over that imaginary barrier, as potent as the circle of Richeltou, which kept them apart.

And yet she would never know what horrible constraint he put upon himself. How he stood with clenched hands and quivering body and stared after her, long after sha had gone. She would never know how that intensity of longing grew and grew until sometimes he felt that he could not overmaster it. She would never know how. he pluaged away staggering through the woods and threw himsalf down upon the sands on hie sida of tha island, disdaining even the ruda shelter of the cave which was his home. and fought it out. Sometimes she saw evidences of Internal conflict in his soul the aext morning. The calm serenity, the indifference, the animallike satisfaction with which he had faced life when she first know him had long siace disappeared. There were deepening lines, upon his faca which told of thought, of struggle, and of character thus developed by these two potent factors in shaping human him. If he had known for a moment how she thought of him, the great ion in both hearts would have overleaped every obstacle and in a moment he would have had her in his arms. Well, indeed, it is that the served for the Mind which towers above human passions because it is divine.

And so these two while drawing together as inevitably and as irresist ibly as the tide comes in were still kept apart. Their feelings were in solution as it were. A precipitant must he thrown into the atmosphere in which they moved and lived and had their being to disclose them to each other.

On one certain balmy night, they parted as usual. Was the hand clasp longer, was the glance with which he peered at her under the moonlight more self revealing than usual? Did something in his own breast call to the surface that which beat around her heart? At any rate, it was with a great effort that she tore herself away at last and for the first time in his life, although sha knew it not, he followed after her with a few noise less steps only to stop, his face white in the moonlight, drops, of sweat beading his brow in the violence of his effort. Having transgressed even to that 'degree the law, he turned inetautly, without waiting to watch her disappear around the jutting crag that marked the little amphitheater where she siept, and went to hie own side of the island recolutely without a mo ment'e hesitation or delay.

CHAPTER X.

Hearte Awakened. For the moment she forgot where he was and fancied herself back on the ship or more naturally tossing about in that small boat after that long, aventful voyage. Yet no motion to which she had ever been subjected not even the wiidest pitch of the storm which had finally cast her away, produced in her such strange emotions as she experienced then. For the earth itself was tremhling, quivering, rocking. The cave wall above her, seen dimly by the fittering light of very early dawn which came through the opening, partook of the mad, fantastic motion. In another second she realized that it was an earth-peculiar ringing sound of storm. Her bed, of course, was the soft sand over which grass had been etrewn. She lay, therefore, on the floor and could not be thrown down, but she was rolled from side to side in a way which paralyzed her senses Never in ail her experience had she she had seen to it herself that he had known such a sick feeling of terror. heen well hred. Yet no mortal man When the foundations of things are ever went through greater firs of shaken, when not merely the great deep hut the solid earth is broken up, than he. He forced himself not to humanity stands as if in the presence speak words that burned. He cheeked of the power of God. She lay resistless, staring, praying, wondering whether the shaking rock over her head would fall and crush her.

In a moment the inetinct of life quickened her to action. She rose to her knees, staggered to her feet and tried to make her way to the entrance. Waiking was terrible. The hours, and yet the duration of shock was really less than a minute. she reached the opening, it stopped ly as it had begun. The next second. with a roar that sounded like a thouzy light in front of her was bloited out hy a failing mass of rock which just escaped her. The face of the cliff had given away. In deeper, intenser terror than hefore she threw herself against the harrier. It was as hard and as unyieiding as the other wails. No light came to her even. She was imprisoned alive in this rocky sepuicher. She sank down on her knees and huried her face in her hands. She murmured words of prayer.

Her mind flew to the other side of the island, to the man. Was he, too antombed? Was this the end of her labors? Outside she could hear the wind roar and the waves thundering with awful violence on the shore. Be fore the earthquake had come the storm. There was still some connec tion between the cave and the outer air, it seemed, for she was now conactous of lightning flashes. After the storm, came the fire. Her mind went back to what she had read from the Bible a few days before of Elijah's despair. Therefore in like case she listened with all her heart for the still voice of comfort to her awestruck soul. It did not seem to come. She was doomed; she would never see him again, if indeed he were yet alive. She knew her feeling for him now She slipped forward and fell fainting on the sandy floor of the cave. And still the voice was there. Presently it came to her, as the voice of God usually comes to humanity, through the lips of man.

After a space, how long after she could not tell, she was conscious of a human cry through the wild clamor of the storm. A voice that she knew and loved was calling her by name. Was it some wraithlike fancy of the storm? She rose to her knees, sick and faint, and listened. No, it was a human voice, his voice, her name. The cry was fraught with frantic appeal. It thrilled and vibrated with passion. It told her in that awful moment a story which she had not read. It revealed to her imaginations of which she had not dreamed. She was fascinated with what she heard. She forgot for the moment to answer. All the woman in her, the eternal femipine in her, listened. Her bosom rose and fell, her heart throbbed, her pulses beat. Alone with that wild, passionate, appealing, frantic cry, she forgot the earthquake, she fergot the

WHY SALVES FAIL TO CURE ECZEMA

Scientists are now agreed that the eczema germs are lodged not in the outer skin or epidermis but in the inuer skin. Hence a penetratig liquid is required ad not an outward salve that clogs the pores. We recommend eczema patients the standard rescription Oil of Winergreen as compounded in liquid form known as D. D. River Camp Meeting Green AT JUMBO,

FOUR MILES FROM McKINNEY, KY., - WILL BE HELD ON-

AUGUST 26 to SEPT. 5, '10. -BY-

REV. CHAS. D. TILLMAN

THE WORLD-WIDE KNOWN SINGER AND EVANGELIST. OF ATLANTA, GEORGIA.

that can be had for a revival or a great camp meeting and by the grace of God we expect have the best meeting we have ever had,

We furnish rooms or tents for those who wish o stay in the grounds. But occupants will please bring bedding. If you wish to buy or rent a tent please apply 10 days before meeting begins. A dining hall and lunch stand will be run for the benefit of the people,

Purpose; this meeting is run for the positive salvation of lost immanity and not a big time gathering place. We propose to run the meeting orderly and not allow drinking or any mis behavior. We want that men flee the wrath to come and prepare to neet God. We believe in and preach holiness of heart and life but our meeting is clear of fanaticism, and the doctrine that we hold is the one that saves men and keeps them saved, reveated in our inward and outward title.

Are you coming? Be sure to come rent you a tent or build you a cotage and stav all through the meeting. You will never regret it. For further particulars address C. W. Lovell, Stanford, Ky., or Dr.

Frank Grider, McKinney, Ky., or Clarence J. Sipple, London, Ky. Respectfully Yours,

Clarence J. Sipple, Sec., London, Ky.

IF YOU ARE WELL POSTED lumber we don't need to tell you of its good qualities. You have found them out for yourself. It is the man who knows little about it we want to reach. If you are one we want to say most emphatically thar the best lumber is by far the cheapest and that ours is the best to be had. J. A ALLEN, Stanford, Ky.
